Bank Safety

One of the most important factors in determining bank safety is the level of capital a bank maintains as well as the ratio of that capital to its assets. Capital can be defined as the investment in a bank by its ownership, which provides a protective cushion from potential loss for its depositors and other creditors. The Bank of Advance's family-based ownership investment is currently $40.6 million and represents the Bank's core capital (cushion). This capital is totally at risk before any loss would be incurred by a depositor (not insured by FDIC insurance) or any other bank creditor. Therefore, much attention is paid to bank capital levels by examiners and regulating agencies. The Bank of Advance has always strived to maintain capital levels that far exceed what is defined as "well capitalized", according to federal banking regulations. The information below illustrates the regulatory definitions of capitalization and the Bank of Advance's sound position compared to these definitions.

Capital Ratios:	Risk Based	Tier I Risk Based	Leverage
Bank of Advance:	19.03%	17.77%	12.93%
Regulatory standard:
Well Capitalized	greater than 10.00%	greater than 6.00%	greater than 5.00%
Adequately Capitalized	greater than 8.00%	greater than 4.00%	greater than 4.00%
Under Capitalized	less than 8.00%	less than 4.00%	less than 4.00%
